MONTHLY UPDATE - AUGUST 2026

The key driving forces for the markets in August were exceptionally strong corporate earnings and resilient macroeconomic data, which successfully offset lingering concerns over the AI trade. This positive sentiment fueled a global equity rally, even as persistent inflation and hawkish central bank rhetoric pushed sovereign bond yields higher. US corporate profitability continued to exceed expectations, with Q2 earnings growing by a robust 30% even after excluding non-operating income boosts from Alphabet and Amazon. On the macroeconomic front, US economic growth remained steady, with real GDP growth unrevised at +1.5% (quarter-on-quarter annualized) in the second estimate, while the Euro Area registered a preliminary growth rate of 0.44% quarter-on-quarter, surpassing consensus expectations. In terms of inflation, the US core PCE price index year-on-year rate held steady at 3.34%, while a similar upward trend in headline inflation emerged in the Euro Area, where headline CPI jumped to 3.25% year-on-year even as core inflation edged down to 2.42%. Against this backdrop of persistent inflation and resilient growth, Chairman Kevin Warsh maintained a hawkish tone at the Jackson Hole conference, asserting that the Fed's predominant focus remains on prices and signaling that a rate hike in September remains on the table should inflation print firmer than anticipated. Additionally, the US Treasury announced it would double its planned buybacks in the 10-to-30-year sector, raising concerns regarding broader US fiscal credibility.

Within Equities, Developed Market (DM) Equities contributed to returns on the back of exceptionally strong corporate earnings and resilient macroeconomic data. Within Developed Markets, US large-cap Equities (SPX, USD) were up by 2.7%, while Euro Area Equities (SX5E, EUR) and Japanese Equities (TOPIX, JPY) rallied by 1.0% and 3.8% respectively. Allocations beyond DM Large Cap stocks into Small Caps and Emerging Market (EM) Equities contributed to total returns. On a relative basis, Global Small Caps outperformed Large Caps over the month, while EM Equities outperformed DM Equities. Within major EMs, South Korea (MSCI Korea) and Taiwan Equities (MSCI Taiwan) contributed to returns, while China (MSCI China) and India Equities (MSCI India) detracted.

Fixed Income contributed to performance. DM Government Bond exposures detracted as yields rose across the board. The US Treasury yield curve flattened over the month with the 2Y yield up 6 bps, the 30Y yield down 3 bps and the 10Y yield essentially flat, rising 1bp to 4.76%. German, UK, and Japanese 10Y yields rose by 15 bps, 2 bps, and 11 bps, respectively. Spread exposure, including Investment Grade (IG) and High Yield (HY) bonds contributed to total returns and outperformed Government Bonds, as IG spreads remained flat while HY spreads tightened by 15 bps. In Currency markets, the US dollar (GS USD TWI) weakened, depreciating by 1% in August, primarily driven by the Treasury announced expanded long-end buybacks, co-ordinated US-Japan efforts to support the yen, and the market's digestion of the latest inflation data.

Lastly, Alternatives contributed to performance, driven by the Trend Following and Absolute Return Tracker strategies.
